QUEBEC THE TERMINUS.

The Great Atlantic Steamer Lines Endeavoring to Make Headquarters There.

Homestead Workmen Commit a Dastardly Dynamite Outrage on Non-Unionists.

The Trial of a Heterodox Presbyterian Clergyman in Cincinnati, Ohio.

QUEBEC, Oct. 7.—A sensation was created last night in town by an article in Le Lecteur, that in view of the establishment of the Canadian Pacific Railway's Atlantic steamers, with Quebec as the terminus, Americans will probably take the Quebec route in preference to that by New York in order to save 600 miles of dangerous and fatiguing navigation. The great American companies are organizing to reach Quebec, and the New York Central is already at work in this direction, having now secured for the purpose the Adirondack road, the United Counties road, from St. John to Sorel, the Drummond county line, and lastly, the charter of the Great Eastern line, which will bring it to Levis, and upon all of which work is to be pushed with the greatest vigor at an early date.

Another Heterodox Professor.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 7.—The trial of Prof. Henry P. Smith, of Lane Seminary, on the charge of unsound teaching on Biblical scholarship and inspiration, is the special order of the day before the Presbytery of Cincinnati, in session at the First Presbyterian church to-day. The charges, which are founded on his utterances in "Biblical scholarship and inspiration," created considerable trouble before the Presbytery last spring, and a resolution calling for the prosecution of the professor was at that time tabled. In the indictment against the noted divine it is charged as follows: "Prof. Smith regards the Bible mainly as a piece of patchwork or mosaic, written and related by unknown authors. Dr. Smith says the Bible is made up from memory and tradition long after the events. Jeremiah says: 'The Lord put forth his hand and touched my mouth.' Nobody but skeptics, freethinkers, material scientists, or the Unitarians of 50 years ago, whom the higher critics have just discovered to be evangelical Christians, can hold any such heresy. But no matter what they hold, the Presbyterian church is its own interpreter, and its standards are what she calls them. She has a right to declare what his orthodox and what is heterodox according to her standards, and then to require her ordained men to conform to her standards." The divines formulating the charges are Rev. Doctors T. O. Lowe, William McKibben and Elder D. H. Shields. The trial will attract attention among Presbyterians the world over.

The Protestant Episcopal Church.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 7.—This is the third day of the convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and a special report on the question of dividing the United States into provinces, each to consist of dioceses, is among the orders of the day. This is a very great and serious question, involving geographical difficulties. The desirability of a change in the "canons of ordination," by which the time of preparation for the ordination of ministers seceding from other denominations may be considerably reduced, is also to be considered. Of late years quite a number of ministers from other religious bodies have sought admission to the Episcopal Church, and it is the opinion that this should be encouraged to the greatest possible extent.

Mexico's Richest District Opened.

OXACA, Mexico, Oct. 7.—The Mexican Southern Railway was opened to this city yesterday, giving, for the first time, rapid and direct communication with the City of Mexico and the United States. The province of Oxaca is the finest and most fertile agricultural district in the republic, and already many American firms have established agencies here. Work on the brauch of the Mexican Southern from this city to Tehuantepec is being pushed rapidly and will be opened in a few months, giving direct communication with the Pacific Coast.

Non-Union Men Dynamited.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., Oct. 7.—At 2 this morning an attempt was made to blow up the Mansion boarding house, in which between forty and fifty non-union men were sleeping. Dynamite bombs were thrown into the storeroom on the first flat. They exploded, breaking through the floor and ceilings and smasking every window in the house. There is no clue to the perpetrators. No one was seriously injured.

He drew the money and purchased his ticket for the East, but he was caught at the train and is now in custody. The amount is $70. His plea was a dying mother whom he wished to reach, and he had no money of his own.

THE NEW OFFICERS.

Some of the Officers Who Are to Have Charge of the Ships on the Pacific.

The experiment tried a few months ago of recommissioning ships on the Pacific station by means of crews sent overland from Halifax to Esquimalt by the Canadian Pacific Railway having been attended with success, the Admiralty have decided to recommission the Daphne, Hyacinthe and Nymphe with new crews conveyed by that route. Orders have accordingly been issued for the troopship Tyne to be ready by October 6th to leave England for Halifax with the new crews. Formerly ships were sent from the Pacific to the China station to recommission.

The Naval and Military Record gives the naues of the officers so far appointed to the ships on this station as follows: The Hyacinthe — Lieutenants, Charles Chadwick and Arthur R. Raby, N; engineer, Henry L. Manning, (in lieu of chief); boatswains, Henry Shaw and Christopher Sullivan.

The troop ship Tyne left England for Halifax yesterday with the new crews. She willl call at Bermuda on the way across the Atlantic. The old crews will meet the new ones in Halifax on the 25th instant.

Yesterday's mail to the Navy corroborated the news already received, that the Warspite would go to England for repairs. Her present officers and crew will go with her, leaving in about six weeks.

The Nephew of a Senator Sent to the Penitentiary for Ten Years for Forgery.

The Latest Device for Slaughtering Ducks—Pugilist Mitchell Sent to Jail.

TONAWANDA, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Two new cases are reported in a house at Trenton where the Kalmas, fatner and son, died, and excitement here is intense. In a little four roomed, frame house there live nine people who came to this country three months ago and are employed at the iron works here. When the disease first appeared Frank Kalmas died in nine hours after being attacked and the son died of the same disease after an illness of even shorter duration. This morning it is reported Kalmas' wife and an Austrian named Falisah are down with the disease, but in a milder form. The health authorities are greatly disturbed and have asked for instructions from the state board of health. The house is quarantined, and the bedding and furniture in the rooms occupied by the Kalmas have been burned. A lot of mail from Europe was found in the house and was destroyed. Dr. Jaynes said to-day that the disease had every appearance of genuine cholera. The people in the house had been eating tainted meats and rotten vegetables and the surroundings were generally of an uncleanly character.

Scientific Duck Murder.

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 7.—President Harrison has been invited by Mr. Young, of Young and McShea, Atlantic City, to go duck hunting this fall in Mr. Young's queer little hunting boat, just constructed in Philadelphia. The President has accepted the invitation, dependent upon the improvement of Mrs. Harrison's health. A trial trip of the boat was made yesterday on the Delaware from Cooper's Point. The boat is metallic and modeled after the whaleback ships. It is 18 feet long and 5 feet beam. It is claimed that it would be almost impossible to capsize or sink it, owing to the air chambers at the bow and stern. An oil tank forward supplies fuel for one day. The boat can be submerged to the gunnels by filling all the water tanks, and is lightened by expelling the water by means of a steam ejector. An arrangement of mirrors in the bow lets the ducks see only their own reflection and the boat approaches and fire can be opened on them through port-holes. The boiler projects only fourteen inches above the deck and is hidden by the mirrors. This curious hunting craft was designed by W. J. Jennings of Philadelphia, and is appropriately enough called a "sneak boat."

He was released last winter from a Texas prison, where he served a two years' term for forging checks on the Traders and Mechanics bank of Fort Worth.

The case will be brought before Magistrate Planta to-day.

Mr. Sutherland, the well-known broker of Fairhaven, Washington, has just returned from a visit to Texada Island, and gives a glowing account of the prospects there. In the last report to the Government Mr. Parmalee says that these reports were greatly exaggerated. There was no such poaching in the southern part of the bay. If there was any, it was away north, beyond civilization. He inspected Moose Factory customs post, which had not been inspected for nearly 25 years.

Simply a Personal Dispute.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Two men widely known in commercial and political circles, ex-Congressman R. W. Dunham of Chicago, and his former partner, Alexander Young of Milwaukee, came to blows in the Board of Trade building to-day. According to Dunham's statement, there has been rather hard feeling between the men for some time. This morning, just before the Board opened, the two men met on the second floor of the building and angry words passed between them; as the discussion grew more heated they walked down the stairway to the ground floor. Young had reached the foot of the stairs and Dunham was standing on the third step from the bottom when Young turned and aimed a blow with his cane at Dunham's head. Dunham ducked, but his hat was sent across the floor. Before Young had time to strike again Dunham was upon him and the two men clinched. By this time the police officer, who was standing about 30 feet from the pugilistic speculators at the time the assault was made, had reached them, and the fight was brought to a close. "I demand that you arrest that man," shouted Dunham as the policeman laid his hand on Young's shoulder. Having been a witness to the assault, Constable Briscoe complied with the order and walked him to the Harrison street police station, followed by Dunham and a crowd of the stockbrokers from the Board of Trade. At the station, however, the ex-Congressman refused to prosecute. Dunham, who was formerly president of the Board of Trade, declined to make an explanation when questioned about the causes leading up to the affray, except to say, "It was simply a personal dispute." Young was as reticent as Dunham.

A Wrong Avenged.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 7.—Bernard Dyllyn, the good looking baritone singer in the "Bobby" Gaylor, "Sport McAllister" troup, which played here up to last Saturday night, left the city yesterday in a badly damaged condition. It will be several days before he can sing with his usual clearness. The baritone, it seems, has several bitter enemies in this city. Two or three seasons ago, while he was travelling with the Corinne Co., Dyllyn was charged by Miss Nora Moran, a chorus girl, with having assaulted her. Miss Moran asserted that for some trivial offence he beat her in the face and attempted to choke her. She sued him subsequently and gained a verdict for damages. Miss Moran is a Cleveland girl and her friends have repeatedly declared that Dyllyn could not visit this city without receiving a chastisement at their hands. The actor prepared for an encounter by hiring two constables to accompany him from and to the theatre, but in an unguarded moment he was set upon by an unknown man and trounced soundly and expeditiously. After the assault Dyllyn doubled the size of his bodyguard, as he heard that other men were awaiting a chance to attack him. The actor's right name is Dillon and he hails from San Francisco.

Bravery's Reward.

EVERETT, Oct. 6.—Fern Bluff, a prospective city on the Great Northern, a few miles west of Sultan, has a heroine in the person of Miss Mary Feak. She is a modest school girl, about 16 years of age, and resides with her parents upon a ranch close to town. The recent rains had caused a drain to clog which carried away the surface water from a hillside cut past which the girl walked on her way to and from school. On approaching the place she noticed that the rain of the previous night had washed out the sandy soil from beneath the rails for a distance of ten feet, leaving them suspended over a pit several feet in depth. She knew a construction train was due at that time, and instead of proceeding to school waited to signal it. A large number of cars of material, and having 200 men on board, soon came in sight. The engineer looking ahead saw the signal and stopped the train before reaching the danger point. He leaped from the cab, thanked the young lady, and inquired her name. She acknowledged the thanks, but turned immediately and went her way, leaving the men to wonder and to repair the damage. Subsequent inquiry was made by the road officials, and the modest young woman was promised a life pass over the Great Northern.

Died in the Desert.

PHŒNIX, Ariz., Oct. 7.—Yesterday the bodies of two Mexicans who had died of thirst were found on the desert west of Yuma. They were named Henriquo Gonzales and Pedro Marcel, and left camp ten days ago to prospect in the Cordera Mountains. Not having been heard from their friends went in search of them and found signs of them at the first water holes, which were dry. Further on they found a book in which one of them had written: "No water in the wells, we are getting delirious and are going north." Five miles further the bodies were found; they had been badly torn by wolves.

THE DALTONS WIPED OUT.

They Made a Raid on Two Banks and Got Themselves Exterminated.

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., Oct. 5.—Bob and Grant Dalton, Tom Heddy and three other members of the Dalton gang lie dead in this city, with Emmet Dalton mortally wounded.

City Marshal C. T. Connelly, George Cubin and Charles Brown, a shoemaker, are also dead, and Cashier Thomas G. Ayers, of the First National Bank and Lucius Baldwin, a clerk in Reed Bros.' store, are fatally wounded, while T. A. Reynolds and Lewis Beitz are slightly injured.

All resulted from an attempt of the Dalton gang to rob the banks of C.M. Condon & Co. and the First National, of this city, this morning.

Six members of the gang came into town on horseback. Leaving their animals in an alley they walked rapidly across the square, four entering Condon's and two going to the First National Bank.

At Condon's the bank cashier, Ball, told them the time lock would not open for five or ten minutes. The robbers then said they would wait, meantime covering Ball and the teller, Carpenter, with Winchesters and taking the money in the drawer.

Bob and Emmet Dalton were the visitors to the First National. Here was Cashier Ayers, his son Bert and Teller Shepherd. They forced them to give up all the money in the safe. The Daltons then forced them out of the front door, following them.

An alarm in the meantime had been given, and as they came out George Cubin and Express Agent Cox shot and wounded one of the robbers badly.

The robbers returned the fire, killing Cubin.

The robbers in Condon's bank then began shooting out of the windows, hitting Ayers and Brown. Both robbers then ran back through the bank. They were met by Baldwin, and they killed him.

The citizens, thoroughly aroused by this time, pursued the robbers and succeeded in killing five of the gang and mortally wounding Emmett, who lies in a room here. If he survives his injuries he will be lynched. The one who escaped is supposed to be Allie Oges.

Cashier Ayers may recover. All the money was recovered and turned over to the bank.

Emmet Dalton made a partial statement, stating that his gang was the same that robbed the Pacific express on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad at Adair station, Ind. T., last July, and a number of other daring robberies.

The body of one of the gang was found near the edge of the city.

A mounted posse is in pursuit of the escaped robber, and it is certain he will be captured, and in all probability will dangle from the end of a hastily improvised noose. Great excitement exists, and it may be that the wounded members of the gang will also be lynched.

This is the old home of the Daltons and it is peculiarly appropriate that the world should be rid of the gang here. The large rewards for the capture of the outlaws, dead or alive, will, if the citizens' wishes are respected, go to the families of the murdered citizens.

Wreck of the Nashua.

PORT HURON, Oct. 6.—The steamer which went in search of the steam barge Nashua, adrift on Lake Huron since Monday night, arrived at Sand Beach this afternoon, and reports having found the Nashua bottom up 20 miles from Bayfield at daylight this morning. They made diligent search in the neighborhood for some of the crew, but could not find a trace of any of them, and it is now feared that all are lost. The names of the missing are: Captain Richard Miller and wife, Archie Muir, of Port Huron, pilot; Charles Brockway, mate, of Brockway, Mich.; and John Putman, first engineer, of Detroit. Captain Miller owned a third of the boat.

President Hill Speaks.

SEATTLE, Oct. 6.—In an interview President J. J. Hill said: "I have just come over the line, and find work making good progress. I expect track will be connected at the summit about November 15, as I have before said. When the bank is well settled we shall be able to reduce the time between here and St. Paul to about 60 hours. The Transcontinental Association is about broken up, but I cannot say what is likely to be done with rates. We have no transcontinental line yet, and our transcontinental business is very light at present. I see no reason why we should not be able to agree on rates with the Northern Pacific; we have always got along well with it so far. The terminal question here is now in the hands of the courts. We ask no more than has been granted to other lines."

Liquor Made and Marred Him.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The death of John M. Moan, a Sioux City millionaire, in a drunk establishment in this city, brings to light an interesting story, all the more curious in connection with the circumstances of his demise. Ten years ago he was a moneyless employe in the West Chicago street railway shops. He accumulated a little capital later in the beer bottling business, and then in the height of the prohibition agitation removed to Sioux City, purchasing for a nominal sum 360 acres of land on the Nebraska side of the Missouri river, to which he built a pontoon bridge. A town of 3,000 sprang up as if by magic, and bridge toll of twenty-five cents a head charged to Iowans for crossing over to Nebraska, where liquor could be had, proved a veritable bonanza. Moan's relatives denied that he was being treated for the drink habit, saying he was suffering from nervous exhaustion and was given an overdose of chloral. Dr. Lucas declared he died from alcoholism.

ENTRAPPED A BURGLAR.

How a Brave and Self-Possessed Woman Fooled and Captured a Robber.

Henry Edmonds was a bright, ambitious New York lawyer on the sunny side of thirty, and when in 1882 he married Ellen Turner all his friends and all her friends declared that he had done a very proper and a very sensible thing.

As Mr. Edmonds and his young wife were both very fond of the country he bought a cozy house near Dobbs Ferry, from which he came in to New York every morning, and to which he returned in the evening.

In addition to his legal business in the city Mr. Edmonds had many large investments in real estate in Westchester county, and as there was no bank within reach he was forced to keep a considerable sum of money in the house every night.

To provide for the care of these funds, he had a safe built into the wall of his library, in which the money and his other valuables were locked up every night.

One evening when he had about $10,000, a larger sum than usual, in his possession, he was called to New York by a telegram. He showed this to his wife, and after kissing her goodby told her that he might not return till about noon on the following day, when he would take the money into the city for investment.

Mrs. Edmonds' only companion in the house at this time was the black cook, Dinah. Dinah was very tall and stout, weighed about 200 pounds, was very kind hearted and as lazy as she was black, which is saying a great deal.

SHE CLOSED THE SAFE DOOR.

That night after her husband's departure Mrs. Edmonds, accompanied by Dinah, made a thorough examination of the house to see that all was safe and properly locked up. This duty attended to, she went to her bedroom, intending to pass the time in reading till midnight, for she was under the impression that her husband might possibly return.

This bedroom joined the library, and the door of the safe opened into it. The windows were draped with long curtains, between which the moonlight faintly entered. The bed stood with its foot toward the windows and its head about a half a yard from the wall. It was an old fashioned structure, hung with yellow silk, like the windows. The bed was so large that no one ever thought of moving it, except on those occasions of household panic called "housecleanings."

In the safe Mr. Edmonds was accustomed to place not only the money on hand, but the silver plate and his wife's personal jewelery.

The night being very hot, the windows were left open as they usually were when her husband was at home, and Mrs. Edmonds sat down at a table in the center of the room and began reading by the light of a lamp.

After awhile the clock struck 10, at which hour Dinah always went to bed. Her room was in the attic, the third story of the house. Recalling some household matters about which she wished to speak with the cook, Mrs. Edmonds hurried out to the stairs to intercept her. This she did and returned in about three minutes to her chair and resumed reading.

After half an hour she became wearied and decided to go to bed, but to stay awake, so she placed the lamp on a stand near her pillow that she might continue her reading.

In half an hour she laid down the book and fixed her eyes mechanically on a mirror opposite the foot of the bed. In this she could see herself reflected with the yellow silk curtains at her head. She was thinking, not unnaturally, how pretty she looked, when suddenly she saw in the mirror something that made her heart stand still.

A hand appeared upon the curtains, drawing them slowly apart and grasped cautiously the headboard. It was a man's hand, large and coarse and dark, as if belonging to a mulatto or to one greatly tanned by exposure to the weather.

Her first impulse was to start from the bed and scream for help. This was repressed by a strong effort of will, and she lay perfectly still with her eyes partially open so that she could watch the mirror.

Frightened though she was, Mrs. Edmonds quickly took in the situation. In her few minutes of absence from the room the thief and robber, possible murderer, had stolen in through the open window and had concealed himself behind the drapery of the bed.

The man doubtless knew that Mr. Edmonds had received a large sum of money that day and that he was now absent from home. He had entered prompted no doubt by a desire to get the money and anxious to avoid detection.

Meantime the man had moved noiselessly from the foot of the bed, and Mrs. Edmonds could see that he was a malatto with evil passions written in every line of his coarse face.

The self possession of the young wife at this time was worthy of all admiration. She lowered the lamp half way, put her watch with the key to the safe under her pillow, and moving her head so that they could be easily taken out again she gave a sigh that could be heard all over the room and pretended to have dropped off to sleep.

The man came close and bent over her. He turned up the light and passed the lamp before her face. Satisfied, apparently, he set it down on the stand again, his hand crept softly under the pillow and he removed the watch and the key to the safe.

As he moved noiselessly toward the safe Mrs. Edmonds half opened her eyes again and watched him. She saw him open the door of the safe, which, as has been said, was a large affair and as big as some city bedrooms. The man entered the safe, but without taking the key from the lock.

Here was Mrs. Edmonds' opportunity. With a light bound she was out of bed, dashed at the safe door, closed it, turned the key, and with a long, loud shriek fell senseless to the floor.

How long she laid there she does not know. She was roused by blows on the door of the safe and by the fearful oaths of the man entrapped inside. After a time Mrs. Edmonds had strength enough to turn up the lamp, and then she shouted for Dinah. After some delay the giant cook came down, and hearing the noise in the safe believed it was a ghost and threatened to add to Mrs. Edmonds' troubles by going into hysterics.

While the mistress and maid were talking in frightened whispers, the whistle of a locomotive was heard at Dobbs Ferry. Mr. Edmonds before his departure had said that he would not be back till next day, but despite this assurance his wife was sure that he would return at midnight.

As the clock struck 1 the sound of wheels was heard outside; then the rattle of a deadlatch key in the front door. Mrs. Edmonds rushed down to the hall and fell fainting into her husband's arms.

Officers were summoned from the village, and when the safe was opened the mulatto was recognized as an old offender who had recently been released from Sing Sing, a few miles away.

That the man was returned again to prison it is needless to say. It would also be needless to add that Mr. Edmonds' admiration for his wife was in any way increased, but in speaking of the event to his friends it is still his habit to refer to his marriage as a "safe investment."

The Murder of Don Carlos.

In all history there is no story of more inexorable cruelty than that which records the murder of Don Carlos, the eldest son of Philip II of Spain, by his father. This event happened at Madrid, July 25, 1568.

It would appear that young Don Carlos was addicted to violent bursts of passion, which indicated his insanity; but be that as it may, from his earliest childhood his father had conceived a strong dislike for him. When the young man had reached the age of twenty-three Philip determined to be rid of him, in order that his cousin, the Archduke Rudolph, might be his successor. The prince was placed in prison, where soon after he was reported to have died.

It is only of late, and through the researches of the famous German scholar Bergenroth, that the true story has come to light. This story, the confession of the priest who attended Don Carlos in his last moments, was found by Professor Bergenroth among the musty Spanish archives at Siamancas. The following is the translation of the priest's story:

Don Carlos, the unhappy son of the king, who, no matter what his passion to others might have been, was always mild with me, was told in the morning by his guards that the end had come. Without any sign of fear he rose and walked from his cell between them. They entered a room where a large armchair, on which was a number of straps, was seen, and beside it stood the masked executioner, with a long, glittering knife in his right hand.

The prince looked up, stopped for a moment, then, urged on by his guards, walked in the direction of the chair. Of his own volition he sat down and placed his hands upon the arms.

The executioner now advanced to the front, and, dropping on one knee, he asked the prince to forgive him for the act he was about to commit. The prince could not speak, but for reply he reached out his hand, which the executioner seized and kissed.

This done, two masked men bound the young man's legs and arms to the chair; then one of them fastened a black silk band about his eyes, and threw back his head till the white throat was exposed.

I, his confessor, only able to master my stammering tongue with the help of heaven, came to the side of the prince, who, on hearing my voice, said:

'Oh, father, pray for my soul!'

I repeated the credo, to which the prince responded at the end, "amen."

When Don Carlos had pronounced this word, the executioner suddenly threw his right arm forward, drew the knife rapidly across the neck and a red stream of blood overflowed the black robes and splattered the floor near the chair.

The prince struggled a little. The knife being very sharp had cut well. A few minutes of awful silence elapsed, and then the executioner took the bandage from the eyes, which were closed. The face was pale, but it preserved its natural expression.

The executioner now undid the straps, and the body of Don Carlos was wrapped in a black baize cloth and put in a corner of the room.

The king had planned his work well. He not only determined to free the world of his son, but that the means of his doing so might not be known he decided at the same time to rid the world of the executioner.

Scarcely had the body of the prince been taken from the chair when Antonio Perez flew at the executioner and accused him of having stolen the diamonds of the prince. Violently and with indignation the charge was denied, and the executioner asked to be searched. Perez, who had the diamonds concealed in his own hand, easily found them upon the person of his victim. The executioner dropped off his mask, revealing his white face, and declared that this was the work of witchery.

Perez at once sent a messenger to the king, who returned hastily with two arquebusiers. The order of the king was that the executioner should die on the spot for the heinous crime of having robbed the corpse of a prince of the royal blood.

Protesting his innocence the executioner was led into the courtyard; two reports of arquebuses were heard, and the executioner was as dead as the prince.

This is the true story of the death of Don Carlos, the unhappy son of Philip II of Spain.

Of Inestimable Value.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 7.—The firm of Gauman & Erb, of this city, is constructing a receptacle for the original Declaration of Independence, the draft of the same made by Thomas Jefferson, the Constitution of the United States, and other valuable historical and legal documents which are to be exhibited at the World's Fair. The Constitution has never been out of the State Department since it was first deposited there. The chest in appearance is like a safe, built in the form of a sideboard. The height is ten feet, is three feet six inches broad and about as deep, and is made of highly wrought gray steel. The trimmings, which are put on in abundance, are of gold leaf. A shelf lined with velvet is placed below the upper drawers. The latter are of oak. When the gold combination lock is turned to the right number, and the steel doors fly open, a set of drawers working on rollers and provided with Birkhead brackets appear. The chest is lined with tin. It will be sent to Washington and there supplied with plate glass, so that the curious may catch a glimpse of the documents. A special car will be provided, and under a guard composed of several military officers it will be taken to the fair.

Cholera Echoes.

HAMBURG, Oct. 6.—The police have refused to allow the keepers of small shops to hold a meeting to consider the precarious condition of their affairs. More than 3000 men had responded to the call. The city government feared that the bitterness and distress of the tradesmen would lead them to violent scenes and, perhaps, riot, and was unwilling to run the risk of the starving workmen being aroused to action by their example. To-day there were 33 fresh cases of cholera, 11 deaths and 123 burials in the city. In the hospitals there are 761 patients. The number of burials last August and September exceeds the number in August and September, 1891, by 10,505.

Interviewed the Robbers.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—The Examiner will print this morning an interview between their reporter and Evans and Sontag. It says in substance that they are both well, are in an accessible place and have ample provisions. The only wound Evans received in the late fight in Young's cabin was a graze flesh wound over the eye. Sontag was shot through the fleshy part of the arm, but the wound is now healed. They deny that they robbed the train, and say they can prove their innocence by an alibi, and claim that all the shooting they have done has been in self-defence.

Will Follow Mahomet.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Consul Webb has resigned his post in the Philippine Islands in consequence of his recent conversion to Islamism. This conversion, he says, is the result of long study of the Koran. He wishes to devote the rest of his life to preaching Mahometanism among the English speaking people. He has written to Budridi Abdul Kur in Bombay explaining the reasons of his conversion and his plans for spreading the propoganda.

Tennyson's Last Works.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Macmillans will publish the poems by Tennyson which have not before been made public, including "The Death of Ænone." Tennyson wished his son Hallam to write his life.

HIS FIRST EXPERIENCE!

In August last, Jack camped with a few friends in a quiet and secluded spot, on the banks of the St. Maurice river, where the party had located for fishing and sport.

Jack's first night under canvas brought him a cough and hoarseness, which for two days was neglected and unheaded. It became so troublesome on the third night, that one of his party came forward with a bottle, saying: "Here, Jack, use this as often as your cough troubles you to-night; it will certainly relieve you before morning."

The remedy proved to be Harvard Bronchial Syrup, which Jack had seen used with great effect in his own home. Jack was delighted to get hold of such a cough preparation, and it required no urging to induce him to use it.

Jack was up early next morning and took a bath in the waters of the river, and never felt better. Every touch of hoarseness was gone, and a cough was a thing of the past. Harvard Bronchial Syrup had done its work quickly and effectually. All were gratified and surprised; and declared that in future excursions and campings, Harvard Bronchial Syrup must always have a place in their outfit.

AN AGREEABLE DUTY.

The Colonist fails to answer Ald. Lovell. Mr. Davie's paper deliberately stated that "the Mayor and council had allowed the financial affairs of the city to get into a most disgraceful muddle." This statement is untrue, and Ald. Lovell said so. The unabashed organ of Mr. Davie returns to the charge, and with a deluge of characteristic twaddle about its affection for the board of aldermen, individually and collectively, repeats by implication the falsehood about the finances of the city. This is Davieism, pure and simple. Any newspaper is liable to fall into an error, but every respectable newspaper will promptly set itself right when convinced that it was mistaken. Mr. Davie's organ, which seems like any other convert to be more devoted to its master since it has been forced into line again, has undertaken the congenial task of misrepresenting the Mayor and council, and although Ald. Lovell were to convict it over and over again he could not succeed in correcting the pernicious practice which the organ is paid to pursue. To the Colonist it is an agreeable duty to misrepresent any person opposed to its political party.

CHANGING SIDES.

It seems probable that there will be more party ties broken in the present presidential campaign than in any like contest of recent years. Some very notable conversions have already been announced. Oregon Democrats are complaining bitterly about the apostacy of Governor Pennoyer, who has declared himself in favor of the Republican platform. On the other hand, two very prominent Republicans have changed sides within the last few days. One of these is Walter Q. Gresham, the noted jurist and politician of Indsana, who was a member of President Arthur's cabinet, and who once was nearly nominated Republican candidate for the Presidency. It is stated very positively that Judge Gresham has decided to vote for Cleveland, and even to come out with a letter in his favor if deemed advisable. His change of side is said to be due to the Republican attitude on the tariff question. The other notable convert to Democracy is Wayne McVeagh, who was Garfield's Attorney-General. That gentleman has written a letter to the secretary of the Massachusetts Reform Club, in which he announces that he will vote for Cleveland, giving his reasons in detail. He objects to the tariff policy, the pension policy and the general recklessness and extravagance of the Republican administration. Evidently this Presidential campaign is going to be notable in more ways than one.

STOCK AND BOND PRICES.

It is very satisfactory, as the Colonist says, to find British Columbia 3 per cent stock rating high on the London market, as appears from some remarks of the Financial Times. Our stock is quoted at 88½, while Dominion inscribed 3 per cents are quoted at 96 and those of Ceylon at 92½. As the Financial Times says, there is no good reason why our stock should not be quoted as high on the market as that of Ceylon, or even of the Dominion. That it is not is probably only the result of a market freak, which will be cured by the province becoming better known to investors. English capitalists will think more of British Columbian opportunities for investment as they grow better acquainted with them. We may here be allowed to point out the fact that too frequent borrowings will not tend to improve either Canada's or British Columbia's status on the London market. The Australian colonies have worn out their welcome there, and it would be easy for Canada to do the same. With the exercise of proper care, however, it should be possible for this province and the Dominion to keep up the credit they have gained, and even to improve it substantially. There is so great an amount of capital waiting for investment opportunities, and the demand for "gilt-edged" securities is so keen, that British Columbia stock should be found climbing to a higher price than it now brings. Recently a sale of City of Toronto 4 per cent. bonds was made at 96, while 3½ per cent bonds of the same city brought 89. A Toronto paper expresses great satisfaction over the fact that these 3½ per cent. bonds brought one per cent. more than Vancouver's 4 per cents, which were marketed at 88. Perhaps it would feel even more jubilant if it compared the Toronto 3½ per cent. bonds at 89 with British Columbia's 3 per cent. inscribed stock at 88½. But a more striking instance of the good position of substantial securities in the money markets is furnished by Hamilton city, which has received from a New York syndicate an offer to purchase at par its proposed $2,000,000 of new 30-year debentures, bearing 4 per cent. interest. If the city of Hamilton, or any other Canadian city, can borrow money at 4 per cent., surely there would be nothing remarkable in British Columbia borrowing it at the rate of 3½ net. It seems, therefore, that while British Columbia may well be pleased to see the province bettering the money rate of past years, there is no reason for holding up one's hands in astonishment over the achievement.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It was really too bad of Ald. Lovell to misunderstand the Colonist so. Perhaps if he had remembered that the Government organ had lately been "in a hole" itself he would have been more ready to credit it with none but kindly intentions towards the City Council.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer yesterday devoted about two columns of editorial matter to combatting the People's Party. Some other Republican papers put forth equal efforts in the same direction. From all this it would appear that the movement of which General Weaver is the official head is one of some significance.

Ottawa Free Press:—While the farmers, lumbermen, miners and other working classes are compelled to pay taxes upon everything they produce, favorite manufacturers are able to get such articles as they import placed on the free list, under the pretext that they are "raw material." For instance, Mr. Foster has just decided that steel used in the manufacture of auger bits and augers shall be admitted free. This of course augurs well for the manufacturers of augers, who will now cease to bore the minister for such a concession. But finished augers are the "raw material" of wood workers, who are entitled to just as much consideration as the men who make augers. Why permit the raw material of manufacturers to come in free, while taxing the raw material of the farmers, lumbermen and miners? Binding twine, cotton and kerosene oil are as much the raw material of the farmer as steel is the raw material of the man who makes augers.

A Splendid New Map.

Mr. C. W. Towsley, representing the Dominion Publishing Company, of Vancouver, is in the city in the interest of a large new map of British Columbia, just issued by that firm. The map is a most complete and elaborate one, with all the information compiled to date, and the publishers are deserving of the thanks of the public for supplying an urgent and long-felt want with such a complete and magnificent physical and political chart of the country. The map proper measures 65 by 53 inches, and, with the illustrations of Provincial cities and other points of interest, which form the margin, the full measurement is six by seven feet. The publishers have been months in preparing the work, and they employed, at heavy cost, special engineers to obtain the latest and most reliable details upon certain topographical, railway and other matters as to which there has been, until quite recently, considerable doubt. The electoral districts of the Province are shown in different colors and every natural and political feature of the country indicated with a clearness and accuracy that has not been approached in any former chart of the province. A very valuable feature is the full and accurate statistical table appended to the map, which contains such information as the area of the province in acres, divided into agricultural, grazing and timber lands; the population of the four cities and of the province, the revenue for the last fiscal year, statistics relating to lumber, salmon, canning, mining, farming, and sealing industries, etc. The illustrations around the map, 33 in number, are zinc itchings, each a work of art, specially drawn by Mr. P. O. Mueller, a well-known landscape artist. The provincial coat-of-arms, finely etched, embellishes the top of the map, by authority of special order-in-council passed last June. The map is well worthy of a place in every school in the province and the Dominion at large, and it should find a place in every business office which has occasion to use such work.

The famous leaning tower of Saragossa is at last being pulled down. It was repaired in 1860, but had for some time been condemned. Imprisoned by the Typhoon.

The N.P. steamer Loo Sok, which arrived last night from Yokohama had a thrilling experience off the Chinese coast. She was heading for Amoy, and and when about 100 miles out to sea from there ran into a typhoon. The vessel had a terrible experience in the storm and was roughly used. The remarkable part of it, however, was the fact that the heavy wind had blown thousands of birds and myriads of bugs and other insects out from the land and they were all collected in the centre of the typhoon. Many of the birds, among which were some snipe, flew to the ship. The snipe were easily caught. The officers describe the scene as being simply marvellous. They never saw or heard of anything of the kind. The Loo Sok brought over 1900 tons of freight, 60 tons of which was for Victoria. She left for Seattle at one this morning.

The New Baptist Church.

Work on the new Baptist church at the corner of Chatham street and Fernwood road, Spring Ridge, began this morning. The building, which is to cost $5000, will be constructed by day work, and some of the younger male members of the congregation will do some work at it in lieu of contributing money to build it. Thomas Hooper is the architect of the new building.

THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS.

Volney Ashford, a Noted Subject of the Island Kingdom, Talks Entertainingly.

Hawaii's Golden Days Passed Away With the Passing of the McKinley Measure.

Valney Ashford, Honolulu, H. I., writes a hand peculiar and attractive. If there be ought in a man's handwriting indicative of his character a person who read that signature would doubtless say that it was the signature of a man with force of character. There is a certain boldness that singles it out from among many other autographs. And the signature does not belie the man who wrote it.

Volney Ashford was one of the prime movers in the Hawaiian revolution and has passed through the thrilling experience of being tried for high treason against the late King of the Hawaiian Islands. Mr. Ashford is a man of 45 years, and is attired in black. He wears a long, dark-brown moustache, and a short growth of whiskers might suggest to the observer that Mr. Ashford does not find the British Columbia fall as mild as the climate of the Hawaiis. Mr. Ashford sat writing.

"No trouble," he said. "I have passed through too much brimstone to let the small fact of interruption in letter writing disturb my equilibrium. You ask me about the sugar question of the Hawaiis and also as to the probability of annexation of the island to the United States or other powers. Your questions are, in a certain since, very much allied. Prior to the passage of the McKinley bill the Hawaiian Islands had a great monopoly of the sugar trade of the United States. It was said to be reciprocity, but I think that the reciprocity of trade was all one-sided. The United States conceded a great deal and got very little in return. And Hawaii gave very little and received much therefor. The reason was that Hawaii had little to give. Prior to the McKinley bill, as I have said, there existed a reciprocity treaty between the States and Hawaii. Hawaiian sugar went into the States free. Say the price of sugar was three cents a pound. The duty imposed by the United States was two and half cents per pound. That bounty went to the Hawaiian planters. That is $50 per ton. Now, take a sugar plantation of 4000 tons and multiply the 4000 by 50 and you will get the profit for the planter under the old regime. The total is 200,000 is it not? That is that much in cold cash."

"The McKinley bill came into force. The duty on sugar was abolished as against powers that reciprocated in trade. Hawaii lost the 'sugar plum.' The United States government gave a bounty to sugar planters in the States. And these causes combined, practically ruined the Hawaiian sugar trade and almost financially stranded the islands. Sugar is the chief source of revenue in Hawaii. Rice is grown in fairly large quantities, but the large number of Chinese and Japanese laborers, who live almost entirely upon rice, leaves a small percentage of the growth of this cerial for export. The planters of Hawaii are in the words of the book of books "watching and waiting," and if the McKinley bill is not knocked on the head or some other boom crop up, their obedience to the scriptrual injunction will avail little."

"From out of rice in the discussion of Hawaiian affairs naturally follows politics. Politics has affected rice as I have shown you. Now, if Hawaii threw in her lot with the States, affairs would be righted as far as the commercial prosperity is concerned. Hawaii would then be part of the States, and would heve a right to the bounty, I believe, of 3 cts. per lb. for sugar grown in United States territory. Trade in Hawaii would then take a sudden boom. While the planters and business men of Hawaii favor annexation with the States, there is opposition. Hawaii has a goodly number of British and Germans in her population. Both the English and the German would like to see an English or German protectorate proclaimed, and even the Japs have an eye on the islands, and the Mikado would not be opposed to extending his protection. The Japanese form a large portion of the population."

"So you see the islands are split up into factions. But every thinking man knows that this state of business depression cannot long exist and sooner or later the inevitable must come and Hawaii will become a dependency of the States or some other great power, the prevailing opinion is Great Britain.

"Before the revolution of 1887 the king ruled in a despotic manner. The inhabitants generally became disgusted with the manner in which affairs were shaping and a revolution was the outcome. Then it was thought that Hawaii would be a republic or become part of the States. But a section of the revolutionists weakened, or rather were won over by the fair promises of the king to be a better boy in future. An understanding was arrived at. The king granted anything that was asked, and was allowed to rule as a limited monarch. Among other things there was then effected a change in the legislature. Previous to the revolution the king appointed one-half of the legislature, who were designated nobles to distinguish them from the representatives elected by the people. Under the law, as at present existing, both "nobles" and representatives are elected. The "nobles" are elected under a franchise which excludes most of the native population, the voting qualification being in property and income tax, which is so arranged that it takes in all whites, citizens or aliens. The vast majority of the natives are poor. They do not possess the land or the money, and they do not vote for the nobles. The franchise system for the representatives is fairer to the natives. It throws the franchise open to all residents excepting Asiatics. I mean Chinese or Japanese. You can readily see that while the whites number a very small portion of the population—under a twentieth—they control half the influence. And it is generally the larger half of the Irishman."

"The population of the islands will not exceed 90,000. Of these 40,000 are natives and under 4000 white. The remainder are Chinese and Japanese. The Hawaiians are an inoffensive people. They are a fine looking race, and of splendid physique. But the vices of the whites, together with their own vices, are considerably diminishing their numbers. The natives are well educated. They read and write their own language and, in many cases, English."

"Hawaii is not giving place to English, but the natives are learning English and both languages are officially recognized."

"Another revolution may yet crop up there. It will be over the succession. Kiulani, daughter of Likelike, sister of the Queen, has been recognized by the legislature as the next in succession. But the Queen has a son whose name is Kaipo, and altogether he is the lawful child. He is pronounced illegitimate. Kaipo is not recognized, but he has a following, and no one ever knows how things may shape themselves. I think I have told you all I know. And Mr. Ashford resumed his letter writing."

In a New Store.

Jackson & Mylius, jewellers, are removing from their old stand in the Colonist block to a store just opposite. They have much larger premises where they have removed to and the situation is better.

Six Schooners to Come.

Only six more of the fleet of Victoria sealing schooners are still out. They are the Annie E. Paint, Sea Lion, Geneva, Enterprise, May Belle and Maggie Mac. This does not of course include the seized schooners.

The First Shipment.

Collector A. R. Milne this morning received a letter from the Canada Paint Company, of Montreal, which is putting in a plant at Janion's wharf, in which the statement is made that a shipment of machinery has been made.

Mr. Bakeman Returning.

Col. A. J. Kane received a letter from Mr. Frank Bakeman, from Chicago, in which that gentleman announced his intention to leave for Victoria shortly, with a party of gentlemen interested in the enterprise. No exact date is set for his departure.

Twenty-Eighth Drawing.

The twenty-eighth drawing for an appropriation in the Victoria Building Society will take place at Sir William Wallace Society hall on the 13th inst. The secretary has a few shares on hand that can be taken up by application to him.

A Wonderful Almanac.

The publishers of the Montreal Daily and Weekly Star are getting out a magnificent almanac, to be known as the Star almanac, said to be the finest almanac in the world, containing nearly four hundred pages, with colored maps. It is looked forward to with great interest.

Seamen and Sealers.

There will be a meeting this evening of the recently organized Coast Seamans' and Sealers union in Trades and Labor hall. The new union is now quite strong and the members are very enthusiastic. They invite the hunters to attend the meeting to-night and join the organization.

The Bankburn Case.

Lawyer J. P. Walls made application before Chief Justice Begbie in the Supreme Court this afternoon for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of the thirteen sailors of the British bark Bankburn, sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment for mutiny. The court made order nisi returnable Monday. Translated, this legal term means that the counsel for the sailors will be given a chance to argue the case and the crown an opportunity to show why the prisoners should remain in jail.

Management of the P.S. & A.S. Co.

The unofficial announcement is made that Walter Oakes has been appointed manager of the Puget Sound & Alaska Steamship Company, to succeed Capt. D. B. Jackson. Henry L. Jackson, son of the latter, has been appointed to the newly created position of superintendent.

The new arrangement, it is said, will go into effect almost immediately. Agent E. E. Blackwood of the Northern Pacific said this morning that he had heard the report, but not officially.

St. Mark's Harvest Festival.

In regard to both beauty and completeness it would have been difficult to surpass the decorations at the Harvest Festival in St. Mark's on Thursday evening. The choir, so recently formed, also did themselves credit in the formidable task which was put upon them. Mr. Henry Watts presided at the organ, and the Rev. W. D. Barber preached the sermon. The congregation completely filled the church and the offertory amounting to $17.10, goes towards reducing the debt still hanging over the building. The whole musical programme will be repeated on Sunday evening next.

She Will Play Juliet.

The play for the second night of Margaret Mather's engagement next week has been changed by request from the "Lady of Lyons" to "Romeo and Juliet." The change will be generally welcomed. "Romeo and Juliet" was never played in Victoria, and with such a powerful tragedienne in the character of Juliet it will be a treat never to be forgotten by Victoria playgoers. Juliet is Miss Mather's strongest character, the one in which she won her early fame, and the one in which she has still no peer. Miss Mather will not consent to the elimination of a single line of any play in her repertoire, and as she has to leave the city on Thursday night, the play will begin promptly at 7:30. Those who really want to see the play and forget this fact will be sorry for it, as Miss Mather has a reputation for inflexible punctuality and will keep her word to a certainty.

SEIZED BY THE CUSTOMS.

A California Schooner Breaks the Law in Several Serious Particulars.

The Collector of Customs Has Her Seized and the Vessel is Promptly Condemned

The San Jose, a 31 ton San Francisco schooner, was seized last night by the customs officers and was condemned this morning by Collector A. R. Milne. She was guilty of a number of offences, but was charged with entering other than a port of entry. She has been in Saanich Arm for a week and her master never came near the Custom House. Her officers also permitted their Chinese cook to land, which is in itself a very serious offence. Aboard the boat were two men who, with Albert Winrich, who is her registered owner and master, and who claims to live here, are the only ones known to be interested in her. They gave the improbable excuse of being driven into the the arm by stress of weather and being badly in need of repairs as the rudder was broken. The men will probably not be proceeded against.

The information of the presence of the boat was first received by the collector on Monday, and men were detailed to investigate the case. Everything was arranged yesterday, and the seizure was made. This morning the tug Minnehaha was sent out and brought the schooner into James Bay, where she now lies. Capt. Winrich and his men were before the Collector a little later. They say they started from San Francisco for Rogue river, which empties into the Pacific in Southern Oregon, but were driven north by stress of weather, entered the Straits, passed half-a-dozen ports, and finally found a haven of rest in Saanich Arm. An examination of their papers showed that the San Jose was licensed only for the coasting trade, and violated U.S. regulations by coming to a foreign port. Collector Milne, after hearing the men, immediately declared the vessel seized for condemnation. He has no doubt that it is a smuggler. She is valued at something over $2000, and was formerly a sealer.

The collector announces his intention to look up the Chinaman who was permitted to land. He was a cook on the San Jose, and the crew claimed to have picked him up here, and that he has papers to show his rights. He will be easily found and then his case will be investigated.

The question arises out of their statement, when were they here before to pick up their man?

As stated above it is very unlikely that the crew will be proceeded against, although the law provides a very heavy penalty for just what they have been doing.

The schooner as she lies in the bay is recognized by many of the sealers as she was formerly in the fleet, and was commonly known as the Old San Jose.

Terrible Destruction.

Messrs. Sluggett, Thompson and Durance were appointed by the members of the Saanich Agriculture to interview the Attorney-General on the matter of sheep killing by dogs supposed to be owned by hunters from Victoria. During two or three days immediately after the opening of the shooting season, the slaughter was terrific. Mrs. Henderson lost 18 sheep, Mr. Hagan 5 and Mr. Thompson 3. The farmers are certain that the sheep were worried by dogs and not killed by panthers, as the modus operandi of the latter is to well known for the signs to be mistaken. The Attorney-General will send an officer into the district to make investigations, and if any evidence can be obtained against the owners of the dogs proceedings will be instituted to recover the value of the animals destroyed. The most culpable act yet reported is the killing of a cow belonging to Mr. Durance. The animal was undoubtedly shot deliberately as its throat was afterwards cut, perhaps to put it out of miser, Thus in one week $300 worth of live stock has been sacrificed to appease the appetite of so-called sportsmen.

A Letter From the Premier.

Besides other business transacted at a meeting of the Board of Health yesterday, it is understood that a letter from Hon. Theo Davie, Premier, was read. It caused a great deal of discussion, some of the aldermen being of opinion that the tone was actually insulting to the members of the board. The reply to the letter, it is understood, was right to the point. It stated, in perhaps a more courteous manner, that the council could attend to its own business.

A Charity Ball.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Jubilee Hospital have decided to hold a Charity Ball at Assembly Hall, on the 26th inst. This was arranged at the meeting of the ladies held yesterday afternoon. Another meeting will be held early next week to make further arrangements. The ball needs no "puffing," the simple announcement that the members of the Ladies Auxiliary are to manage it will satisfy the public, especially those who have attended former Charity Balls.

Sale and Concert.

'Busses will leave the fountain at 7:30 this evening for the Presbyterian sale of work and concert at Cedar Hill school house. A good programme, with refreshments.

Disposal of Garbage.

The Board of Health, at a meeting held yesterday, decided to have the city garbage taken to sea on scows. Tenders will be called for, and the contract let as soon as arrangements can be made. The scows will have to be taken out every night and emptied in the Straits two miles from land.

La Conner's Popular Pastor.

After all Calvary Baptist church will get Rev. J. Coombes for pastor. It will be remembered that a call was issued to him a few months ago, which he refused. A short time ago he signified his willingness to come, and at a meeting of the congregation held last evening a call was issued to him. He will occupy the pulpit the first Sunday in November. His coming will be welcome to the people of the church, by whom he is already immensely liked. The pulpit has been vacant for nine months.

A Cabinet Possibility.

Senator Sanford, the Hamilton millionaire, is in the city accompanied by his daughter. They have been at the senator's Manitoba ranch for an outing and came west on a pleasure trip. As is well known the senator is high in the councils of his party, and is looked upon as a cabinet possibility on the next change. He and his daughter are at the Dallas. They are to remain for several days.

Funeral of the Late E. T. Garnet.

The funeral of the late Edward T. Garnet took place this afternoon. It was very largely attended, all the hackdrivers of the city being present. The floral offerings were numerous and handsome, among them being a wreath from the hackmen. The funeral services were conducted at the R. E. Church.

The Wilson Restaurant.

The Wilson restaurant, to be conducted in connection with the Wilson Hotel on Yates street, was opened today. Painted the Cat Red.

A pet cat belonging to the City Hall fire hall was painted a bright vermillion last night. The "boys" and the pet cat are great friends. The boys threaten to reciprocate with tar and feathers if the offender is caught.

Another Sealer Coming.

Five hundred miles out to sea the steamship Loo Sok passed a sealing schooner heading this way. Her name could not be made out. Including delays in the straits 10 days will hardly see her in port.

HARVEST FESTIVALS.

Good Attendance at St. John's and St. Mark's Churches Last Evening.

The St. John's Church harvest thanksgiving festival was held last evening. The church had been beautifully decorated for the occasion with flowers, fruit and grain. The pulpit, lectern and altar were draped with flowers and vines, interspersed with bunches of grain. Around the lectern were heaped fruits and vegetables. The choir rails were hidden with ropes of straw. The other portions of the church were also very tastefully decorated.

Ven. Archdeacon Scriven preached the sermon, Rev. Canon Beanlands conducting the services.

St. Mark's Church was also very prettily decorated for the harvest festival held last evening by the congregation of that church. Rev. W. D. Barber preached the sermon.

DEATH BY DROWNING.

Byron Leigh Meets His Death in the Waters Off Point Ellice.

Byron Leigh, a member of the firm of Leigh & Sons, of the Point Ellice sawmill, was drowned yesterday afternoon just in front of the mill. He went down the logway to hitch a log on the chain used for hauling them into the mill. Shortly after he went down cries were heard, and a number of boys and a man from C battery saw the unfortunate man struggling in the water.

Efforts were made to get to the drowning man in time to save him, but without avail. It is thought that he got under a log and was held there until death came.

When found the body was in shallow water, but the spark of life had gone out.

The deceased was a native of Orono, Ontario, and aged 40. He came to Victoria about five years ago with his parents, two brothers and a sister.

Byron Leigh was very popular among his friends, of whom he had many. The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock on Sunday from the family residence, Mary street, Victoria West.

Miss Mather's Superb Costumes.

Besides the interest that the public feel in Miss Mather's coming, and outside of that curiosity felt by many people as to her new tragedy, there is another point of fascination in her advent. In the comedietta of "Nance Oldfield" she is given opportunity to wear some bewilderingly handsome dresses; dresses that an eastern fashion writer gushingly describes as "poems of beauty and symposiums of color." The first of these costumes, (for in this play, although but one act long, Miss Mather makes three entrances and each time in a different robe) is a blue satin overdress, plentifully trimmed with old point lace. The underdress is of white satin of pearly tint which is also besprinkled with pearls. The combination is said to be rarely harmonious and fetching. The second is a morning, neglige robe of creamy satin, heavy in its texture and rich in its effect. It is said to be of that peculiar tint that is so becoming to one of Miss Mather's style of beauty. The only trimming, the only thing that relieves the plain simplicity of the dress is a line of gold embroidery that runs around the skirt. The third is the richest of them all. It is a plush opera cloak, royal purple as to color. Perhaps the most prominent feature is the golden girdle which she wears with this costume, a girdle which is said to fairly scintillate with rubies, emeralds and other precious stones. It is said that the costumes worn by the fair young star in "The Egyptian" are but little less beautiful than those worn in the curtain raiser. The white robe which she wears in the prison scene being particularly becoming. For those who delight to see handsome costumes becomingly worn by a pretty woman —and who does not?—there is a season of delight in the coming of Miss Mather.

TEN YEARS OF ELECTRICITY.

The Marvelous Progress That Has Been Seen in a Single Decade.

Ten years ago the first central station for commercial incandescent lighting was established, and arc lighting was beginning to assume its present form; yet a single decade has seen the use of electric light and power advance from the experimental stage to the very front ranks of industrial enterprises.

The most recent estimate of the capital invested in the electrical industries in the United States is $700,000,000, and of this amount $350,000,000 represents the proportion which electric lighting and power have attained; $100,000,000 is also the estimated investment in electrical supplies, of which the electric lighting and railway appliances constitute a large proportion.

The influence which the Edison and Thomson-Houston companies exerted in the development of the electrical industry will be further appreciated if we consider the slow progress made in this branch of science previous to the time of their organization. The telegraph was at that time almost the only important application to which electricity had been adapted, and although electric lighting by means of the voltaic art had been accomplished by Sir Humphry Davy as early as 1810 by means of a battery of 3,000 cells, it was not until 1867, when Dr. Siemens announced his invention of the self exciting dynamo, that any material progress toward the science of electric lighting was made.

At the Paris exhibition of 1878 the system of electric lightning invented by Jablochkoff, by means of which several of the streets of Paris were lighted by electricity, proved an incentive to inventors which resulted in the production of the modern type of arc lamp, which was in a comparatively experimental stage at the time of the organization of the American Electric company of New Britain. The incandescent lamp had received less attention at the hands of scientists than the arc lamp when Edison announced his invention.

The division of the electric current into small units had been a long standing problem before the scientists of that day, but all the experiments previous to Edison's invention had been in the direction of a filament of low resistance, which obviously required a prohibitive amount of copper to conduct the current for a few lamps, even over short distances. The invention of a high resistance filament marked the turning point in the history of incandescent electric lighting.

Thus we see that the whole of this great industry has practically come into existence within a single decade. The men who have been making history at such a rapid rate have been so engrossed with the present and the immediate future that they have paid little attention to the preservation of records, etc., that would not only be of interest but of great practical value to the great army of young men who have taken up the science of electrics as a field for their life work. In the work on the Richmond road experiments were made with, perhaps, seventy-five different designs for a trolley. No memoranda or photographs were preserved, and not even Mr. Sprague himself can tell today just what a half dozen of them were. This is only one instance out of many where data have been irrevocably lost.—Electricity.

A Man Evicted in His Coffin.

An extraordinary eviction is reported from Cashel, County Tipperary. A tenant named Frank Dwyer refused to give up possession of his house to the representatives of his late landlord, contending that the latter had left him the house, together with a coffin, which he kept beside his bed in his room. Dwyer barricaded his house against eviction, and the only means of egress was a ladder to the roof. On the evictors appearing outside Dwyer shouted that they could not evict him out of the coffin; that he would go into the coffin and they must put him out, coffin and all. After some further parley, Dwyer agreed to give up possession, but only on condition that he should be evicted while in the coffin. The key of the door was thrown from the roof and the bailiff and police entered.

They found Dwyer in the coffin, a rough, unpainted one, lying on his back and wearing a tall silk hat, around which was twined an old white veil. Owing to the stairs being too narrow the party had to lower the coffin with its living inmate through one of the windows. As the coffin descended Dwyer loudly protested against his illegal eviction, the large crowd being convulsed with laughter. As soon as the coffin reached terra firma the boys raised it up, and Dwyer, sitting upright, was confined around the town, the crowd cheering lustily.—London Tit-Bits.

Reversing the Usual Order.

The usual order of things was reversed recently in Chester, England, when a suit for breach of promise of marriage was brought against a woman and decided against her. The plaintiff was a young farmer named Albert Timmis, and he sued Miss Mary Birch, a young woman of small fortune. The plaintiff said that for two or three years Miss Birch had "kept him dangling at her heels just to please her vanity, without the slightest intention to redeem her promise to marry him. At the last moment she threw him over in a most heartless fashion. She said she was "too good for a farmer's wife." She also insinuated that he was after her money. The young farmer said he wanted to clear his character of these aspersions. The judge said the young man had a real grievance; his letters revealed manly and touching sentiments and he had been badly treated. The jury gave him fifty pounds damages.

His Bald Head Thatched.

One case of renewal of the hair after years of baldness will set 10,000 bald heads to hoping and experimenting. It is almost a pity therefore to see in the Salisbury (N. C.) papers a statement that a resident there who had been bald for seventeen years has recently grown a fine head of hair. His plan was to cut the hair close on the sides, which renewed the growth on top.

A WINNIPEG MYSTERY.

Miss Olive O'Dell Found Dead, the Victim of a Shotgun Wound.

A Winnipeg dispatch yesterday stated that the coroner's inquest had failed to throw any light on the death of Miss Olive O'Dell, and that the jury had therefore returned an indefinite verdict. Monday's Free Press gives the following particulars in regard to the tragedy:

A most remarkable and mysterious case of suicide, or murder, is engaging the attention of the police. Miss Olive O'Dell, daughter of H. E. O'Dell, timekeeper on the C.P.R., who lives at 180 Austin street, is the victim, and the deed was committed some time on Saturday night or Sunday morning between the hours of 11 and 7 o'clock. The whole case is completely shrouded in mystery and there seems to be absolutely no light, as yet, that will lead to a solution. The facts of the case are briefly these. The deceased had arisen some time during the night and had slipped a flannel waist over her nightdress, put on a pair of slippers and had gone down stairs, but for what purpose is not known. The body of the girl was found yesterday morning in the woodshed, a semi-detached building, by her mother, between 7 and 8 o'clock.

In the front hall was an ordinary muzzle-loading shot gun, which Mansel O'Dell, her brother, had been out shooting with on Saturday and had left there on his return Saturday night about 11 o'clock. He says before coming into the city he had discharged it and when he went to bed the gun was empty. When discovered in the morning the gun was at her feet, and a horrible wound in the upper part of the abdomen clearly showed that death must have been almost instantaneous, but whether caused by her own hand or not remains to be proven. She had fallen on her back and the blood from the wound had soaked through her clothing and saturated that portion of the ground on which the body lay. An exploded cap was on one of the nipples of the gun, the hammer was down and the ramrod lay beside it.

One theory is that for some reason Miss O'Dell had gone down stairs, deliberately loaded the weapon and taken her life with her own hand. The ramrod lying on the ground bears out to a certain extent this theory, as it would have been necessary for the deceased to have a stick to press the trigger, as she would not have been able to reach it without some such article, and what would have been more likely than after hammering slowly the charge she had used the rod, with such terrible result. The police, however, do not place much credence in the above and certain facts seem to bear out that such an explanation is very impossible. Miss O'Dell intended visiting some friends at Lethbridge and would leave on the train to-morrow for that point. She had made all plans and preparations for her trip, and seemed in the best of spirits. On Saturday the young lady took dinner with some friends at the Grand Union Hotel, and they state they noticed nothing unusual in her actions or appearance. She was also out walking with her mother on Saturday evening. It seems unlikely that a person meditating such a serious thing as suicide, would not in some manner exhibit her feelings, but the unfortunate girl was perfectly natural in every way up to the time she retired on Saturday night.

Mrs. John Keays, who lives next door to the O'Dells, stated to a reporter that on Sunday morning, about 3 o'clock, as near as she could judge, she was moving about the house attending to a sick child and was just getting back into bed again, when she heard some person start to run on the sidewalk near Mr. O'Dell's gate. She says it was not an easy run and the person appeared to be in a great hurry and as he sped past the house in a southerly direction his footfalls were very rapid. Mrs. Keays then went to sleep but mentioned the matter to her husband early in the morning, saying at the same time that some person must have been ill during the night next door, as she heard a man, as she imagined, going after a doctor. This fact with certain other things has given rise to another theory. Miss O'Dell did not seek the company of the opposite sex and only had a few male acquaintances, with none of whom she appeared to be very intimate.

The gun was evidently not loaded with shot, and only contained a heavy charge of powder, as probing the wound failed to reveal any lead. The muzzle of the weapon was held to the body, as the wound is about the size of a half dollar piece. It is located just at the pit of the stomach and extends in a slightly upward direction and also bears a little to the right. The flesh is burned for a distance of six or seven inches at the lower side of the wound and extends upwards for a considerably greater space. Besides the night dress and waist the deceased wore a chemise and a guernsey, both of which were burned to a considerable extent.

According to Mrs. O'Dell, when she first saw the body she thought her daughter had fallen in a fit on the ground and ran over to raise her. She gave the alarm, but did not realize her daughter was dead, as she claims the body was still warm. It was not till the corpse was being carried upstairs that anything serious was apprehended and it was then that the blood was noticed on the garments.

What makes the case still more mysterious is that no person heard the report of the gun. The members of the family say they heard no unusual sounds during the night, and Mrs. O'Dell states that she is ordinarily aroused by the slightest noise.

The deceased was very well known in the city, the family having lived here for the past eight years. They formerly lived in Orillia. Miss O'Dell was 22 years of age, and was for a time a teacher in Christ church Sunday school. She formerly attended the collegiate department, and was thought very highly of by her instructors and fellow-pupils. At Christ church (of which the deceased was a member) last evening mention was made of the tragic occurrence by the Rev. Canon Pentreath, who, on account of her many virtues, refused to believe it a case of suicide. Prayers were offered up for the bereaved family.

MAKING GOLD BY ARTIFICE.

How the Alchemists Used to Do It and the Fate It Brought Them To.

Washington Star.]

It has often been stated, and with truth, that modern chemistry is indebted for much of its knowledge to the alchemists of old, whose experiments for the purpose of making gold by artifice were certainly extraordinary to the utmost point of absurdity. Some of them actually attempted to imprison the sun's rays, which they tried to calcine and powder, the rays being supposed to consist of pure golden sparks. Others sought to obtain the philosopher's stone, which was to transmute all other metals into gold, from honey, sugar, wine, blood, and even rain water. Dead bodies were dug up from their graves and saltpeter was extracted from them to serve as an ingredient. Still others believed that gold grew from seed, other metals merely furnishing a fruitful soil in which the yellow germs developed like plants.

In a work now rare, called the "History of Ancient Pharmacy," it is mentioned that Raymond Nully was said to have transformed 50,000 pounds of mercury into gold for the English King Edward III., and that from this supply of the yellow metal the first rose nobles were coined. The credibility of the story is somewhat diminished, however, by the circumstance that the same monarch was soon after obliged to coin money from his own and the Queen's crown and from the golden vessels of churches and cloisters. It is gravely recorded that the Emperor Frederic III. on January 15, 1648, at Prague, changed three pounds of mercury into two and one-half pounds of gold by means of one grain of a lead powder given to him by a man named Richthausen. He created this man Baron of Chaos, and from the gold a medal was made which bore an inscription referring to its artificial origin. This medal was long preserved in the Vienna treasury.

In 1705 a Saxon lieutenant named Paykull was taken prisoner by Charles XII. at Warsaw and condemned to death. He promised to make $1,000,000 worth of gold each year if his life were spared. In the presence of witnesses Paykull changed six ounces of lead into gold by means of a tincture which contained antimony, sulphur, and saltpeter among other ingredients. Out of this gold medals were stamped; but Paykull must have failed in subsequent attempts, because he was afterward executed. If this goose had been able to lay real golden eggs it is to be presumed that he would not have met with so melancholy a fate.

The business of manufacturing gold in those days seems to have been an extremely dangerous one, commonly bringing persons who pursued it to a violent death. George Honauer promised to transform 3600 weight of iron into gold for the Prince of Wurtemberg. The prince detected a boy, who had been concealed in the laboratory, in the act of putting gold in the crucible. He thereupon ordered an iron gallows to be constructed, from which the imprudent faker was hanged in 1697. Two other goldmakers were likewise hanged from this same gallows at Stuttgart in 1606 and 1738 respectively.

In 1677 a man named Krohnemann entered the service of the Marquis of Brandenburg with the rank of colonel. He soon won reputation as a goldmaker and was given charge of the mint and mines. Subsequently he was suspected of fraud, and on his trial it was proved that he had stolen gold and silver from the treasury of the Margrave for use in the deception. He was condemned to be hanged.

A quack named Daniel supplied Italian apothecaries with a wonderful gold powder called "usufur," which was supposed to have astonishing medicinal value. Pretending that the art of compounding this usufur, with other drugs, was a mystery known only to himself, he directed his patients not to permit the apothecaries to mix the ingredients of his prescriptions, but to buy them, including the usufur, and bring them to him for putting together. He mixed the drugs, omitting the usufur, in which manner he succeeded in having restored to him the gold powder, previously sold by him at a high price to the apothecaries. The powder soon became famous, and the quack finally offered to teach Duke Cosmos II. of Florence the art of making gold. The Duke paid Daniel 20,000 ducats for the secret and the swindler fled to France with the money.

Count Cajetan in 1705, in the presence of Frederick I. of Prussia, changed one pound of mercury into gold by means of a red tincture. Subsequently he promised to make $6,000,000 worth of gold in six weeks, but, failing to keep his word, he was hanged, draped in gold leaf, which became the customary method of dealing with alchemists. The tribe of alchemists is not yet entirely extinct. In 1880 an American named Wise duped a member of the Rohan family and a collateral descendant of the "Necklace Cardinal," whom Cagliostro deceived by pretending to make gold. Wise got a considerable sum of money from Rohan and decamped. Only a few days ago the writer picked up a little pamphlet on a bookstall in New York which contained several pages of advertisements of a substance for transmuting other metals into gold, the price being only $5.

Swindled on a Large Scale.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The Postoffice Department has just succeeded in putting an end to the career of one Joseph Ledgers, of the Dominion bureau, with offices at No. 451 Eighth avenue, New York City. Frequent complaints have been received at the department against parties who represent themselves as agents from Great Britain, coming to this country for the purpose of taking advantage of their credulity and deluding them into the belief that they are heirs to large estates in England, the alleged agents demanding from the gullible a sum of money and power of attorney to take hold of the matter. Mr. Ledgers' is the latest case investigated by the department. A complaint from a resident of Egan, Texas, who communicated to Attorney-General Tyner, enclosing a certificate with the seal of the Supreme Court in Chancery sent him by Ledgers purporting to confirm his title to an estate in England, and reciting and representing that Joseph Ledgers, now in America, is commanded to notify the interested parties, after receiving the tax on legacies and bequests to issue possession papers, and report to the Supreme Court at once. This certificate has the court seal on it and is signed "De Long, Chancellor." The amount of tax in the United States is fixed at $45.

Expert Opinions.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Col. Cody (Buffalo Bill) said in an interview this evening that the Berlin-Vienna record could be lowered by Texan or Mexican ponies. In the Manchester match, he said, 20 ponies covered 10 miles in 20 minutes. He compared the work of the thoroughbreds with that of the pony express, which made an average of 17 miles an hour. He himself had covered 422 miles on a pony, riding at the rate of 15 miles an hour. In 1868 he had covered 350 miles in 70 hours. In 1862 Morgan's corps went 300 miles into Kentucky in eight days, taking with them their baggage, and the men were still fresh. Nate Salisbury, he said, had offered to back 50 cowboys with revolvers to dispose of 100 of the best European cavalry.

Montreal Sewers.

Inquiries have been made as to when the sewers of the city are flushed. The answer is that they are never flushed at all. They do not require it. They are built egg-shaped, and this not only guarantees a steady flow, but prevents the lodgment of deposits. As one of the officials of the Road Department remarked this morning, "throw a man into any of our sewers and the current will carry him away. When the sewers are empty, then the gases are the most dangerous, owing to the vacuum. The Williams street sewer is flushed, but that is not a necessity, but rather a courtesy extended to Mr. Constant, who thus empties his dock. Had the Hamburg sewers been built as ours are built there would probably have been no cholera."—Witness.

CITY HALL, Victoria, Oct. 5, 1892.

His Worship the Mayor and Board of Aldermen.

GENTLEMEN—We, the undersigned, having received a copy of a resolution passed by the Council on the 26th of September, re Broad street extension across lot 1252, block T, have the honor to submit the report and plan attached, in conformity with sections 1 and 5, by-law 170, intituled "A By-law to provide for the assessment of real property benefitted by local improvements."

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

Matters of Interest Going Forward in the Sporting World, Here and Elsewhere.

LACROSSE.

WILL NOT PLAY.

A Vancouver dispatch says that the Vancouver Lacrosse team have decided not to come to Victoria to play for the medals which a few Victorians had decided to give for a match between the Victoria and Vancouver teams. The excuse is that the team would not have time to get in trim for the match. It is probable that the Victorians will make the same offer to the Westminster team.

THEY HAVE AN OFFER.

It is understood that the Vancouver lacrosse club have an inducement to offer the Victoria team to go to the Terminal City and play a match. It would hardly be courteous of them to make any offer, after refusing the one made by Victoria. If the offer, however, is as good as the one made by Victoria, the Victoria team will take advantage of it, without any coaxing.

FOOTBALL.

THE ASSOCIATION KICKERS.

The Victoria Association Football Club will meet at Beacon Hill to-morrow afternoon at 3 to engage in a practice game. It is said there will be a general kick over the matter as most of the kickers in the club have something to say about it. The ball will roll promptly on time, so all hands are expected to be there without fail.

TO-MORROW'S RUGBY GAME.

The James Bay Athletic Association's Rugby team will play against the navy to-morrow afternoon on the canteen grounds at Esquimalt.

The following comprise the team and their positions: J. F. Foulkes, back; H. Traill, A. N. Other, R. Clarke, three-quarter backs; A. Ackland, H. Haines, half-backs; D. Sullivan, W. Scott, H. Jones, F. Widdowson, W. H. Pegram, J. Wilson, Geo. Askew, H. F. Hewitt, Jno. Fraser, forwards; reserves, Ed. Mallandaine, jr., H. Austin, —— Stahlsmidt, F. Mallandaine. The team will leave by the 2:30 tram for Esquimalt, and all members are urgently requested to be sharp on time.

CRICKET.

AN UNSATISFACTORY RESULT.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct 6.—All Philadelphia finished the first innings in the third cricket game with the Gentlemen of Ireland at Manheim shortly after noon yesterday. They scored 233 runs against 168 made by the visitors. After the visitors had scored 133 runs, with a loss of seven wickets, in the second innings, the third game was declared off because of the blustery weather, which made good cricket impossible. This leaves the series a tie, the first game having been won by the visitors and the second game by the home team. The attendance to-day was very slim.

THE TURF

FASTEST ON THE COAST.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5.—An immense crowd attended the races to-day.

One mile running race for Sunset purse of $400, opened to all ages—Donna Lila won. Time, 1:45.

Sprinters' stakes, half mile, all ages—Midnight. Time, 49½.

Free-for-all pacing race, purse $1500—Our Dick won; Silkwood second, W. Wood third. Our Dick's time was 2:10¼, the fastest ever made on the Pacific coast.

YACHTING.

THERE WAS NO WIND.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 6.—Nineteen yachts started in the international yacht race to-day. Some sailed two-thirds of the course, the majority did not get half way. The wind went down at sunset and left the yachts where they were. Many were towed in, and the race will be sailed out to-morrow, when 21 will start.

THE TURF.

ANOTHER RECORD BROKEN.

CITY POLICE COURT.

Sneak Thieving of Exposed Goods—Second-hand Dealer Horsewhipped.

The police court opened proceedings this morning by finding Thomas Atkins drunk, $5, and Susan, an Indian, charged with a similiar offense, the like sum.

The case of J. M. Macoun, charged with indecent assault, was then called, Chief Sheppard told the court that the Deputy Attorney-General had instructed him to withdraw the charge. Lawyer Eberts, who acted for Macoun, asked for a discharge certificate.

Magistrate Macrae said a certificate was not granted on cases of assault.

"You are free, sir," said the court, and Macoun and Lawyer Eberts walked from the court room together.

Henry Rutland, who keeps a dry goods store at 47 Johnson street, charged Ah Chee with stealing a pair of flannel drawers from outside the store. When the Celestial was searched the underwear was found hidden in his garments. Two pieces of soap were also found in his pockets. Chief Sheppard asked the court to help him put a stop to the common practice of sneak thieving.

The court suggested that tradesmen keep their goods inside their stores. The hanging of wares outside was a temptation to the needy. The sentence was a month with hard labor.

Jane Marks was charged with assault upon John Sands. Sands keeps a second hand clothing store on Store street. Sands told the court that John Marks and he kept adjoining stores. Sands, on Wednesday morning, hung out an oilskin coat. A man came and looked at the coat, and hung it up on Marks' side. Marks ran out and wanted to know why Sands kept hanging his clothes on Marks' side. Marks accused him of stealing watches, and threatened him with a thrashing before the sun went down. The same night when witness was talking to Chas. Bossi on Store street, Mrs. Marks ran at him with a horsewhip. Witness ran into Bossi's store. Marks followed him into the store. Marks held witness' hands while the Marks woman thrashed him. Mrs. Sands came to the rescue of her spouse and took the whip from Mrs. Marks. Marks then took the whip from Mrs. Sands. Sands again secured the whip and ran with it to the police station.

The whip was produced in court. It was a ladies riding whip.

The lawyer for the prosecution asked Sands if he saw the whip before. Sands replied:

"Me did not see. Me feel it all over."

The crowd laughed. Sergt. Levin cried order.

Lawyer Mills, for the defence, asked Sands if he did not circulate the report that Mrs. Marks ran off with a man to San Francisco. The lawyer asked him if he would deny it. Witness replied that he would not deny it, but had never said so.

This last remark was the occasion of much merriment. Sands also denied having accused Mrs. Marks of graver charges.

Dr. McEachran told of the nature of the wounds. Charles Bossi gave evidence which substantially supported the testimony of Sands.

Mrs. Sands, Mrs. Marks and Morris Marks were also placed in the box. Mrs. Sands stated that she had only come to the aid of her husband. Mrs. Marks said that she thrashed Sands at the instance of her husband. Marks feared that if he laid his hands upon Sands he might kill him. Mrs. Marks told the court that she challenged Sands to prove the imputations cast by him upon her character, and then she gave him what she said he deserved for traducing her. The court fined Mrs. Marks 25 cents. The charge against Mr. Marks was dismissed.

Immense Images.

The largest wooden statue in the world is at Tokio, the capital of Japan. It is the statue of a woman, and is dedicated to Hachiman, the goddess of war. It is 54 feet high, and the head contains a room capable of holding comfortably 20 people. The chamber is reached by a winding stairway in the interior of the figure. In one hand the image holds a huge wooden sword, the blade of which is 27 feet long, and in the other it holds a ball 12 feet in diameter. In the interior the figure is fitted up with a wonderful anatomical arrangement, intended to represent the different portions of the brain. One of the image's eyes is a window, which gives an extended view of the country about. The largest stone image in the world is situated at Banian, India, on the road between Balk and Cabil. It is 173 feet in height.
